Week 5 Preview:

Commish

Week 4 Recap:

Great week: Rizzo (154.96) was the week's highest scorer and moved into a tie for the league's best record. Carb beat Petro by 6.84 in the closest matchup of the week to go 2-0. Tommy climbed back to .500 securing a 2-0 week with a win over Troy and being in the top 6 scores. Nick put up big numbers for a huge 2-0 week. Finally, Mitchie took down Netti in a big week 4 upset to become 5-3 on the season.

Good week: Petro was one of the top scorers of the week, but couldn't outlast Carb on Monday night, faltering by playing the Saints D/ST (-6 points) against the surging Falcons offense. Wawro did what he needed to do to put a point on the board, outscoring Max in the week's lowest scoring matchup.

Disappointing week: Netti drops some points and lets Rizzo catch up in the standings. Troy, Justin, Ryan, and Max all go 0-2 on the week as well.

Week 5 Power Rankings:

1 MillerLiteMatt (6-2) -
2 GinnyGotSackedBy95#Mole (6-2) ^2
3 Weener cheese (5-3) ^2
4 Midrangepullup (5-3) v2
5 Tom, son of Tom (4-4) ^3
6 Stick Season (5-3) ^1
7 Bijan's Army (4-4) v4
8 The Wun Wuns (3-5) v2
9 Kirk Thuggins (3-5) ^3
10 Nick Collins HOF (2-6) v1
11 The Hebrew Hammers (3-5) -
12 Oh no! We suck again! (2-6) v2

Week 5 Preview:

Game of the Week:

#2 GinnyGotSackedBy95#Mole (6–2) vs.

#5 Tom, son of Tom (4–4)

Two teams clash after 2–0 weeks and scores above 150 in week 4, but have some questions about their star players. Rizzo has Tet on a bye after putting up a huge 38 points last week, and now has to worry about Ja'Marr's status after last week's injury. Tommy has Zay Flowers who has his own injury troubles, plus worrying about Lamar now.

#1 MillerLiteMatt (6–2) vs. #7 Bijan's Army (4–4)

Netti and Ryan meet and both look to bounce back after rare 0-2 weeks. Netti's team can go off at any time, but last week shows that he is not invincible. Ryan's team is really living up to their name- he's begging for anyone to step up and put up points along with Bijan.

#4 midrangepullup (5–3) vs. #10 Nick Collins HOF (2–6)

Justin has had a solid start to the season, and looks to bounce back from a set back last week. Wawro has had a bit of a rough time, and looks like that will continue after Lamar's injury last week.

#3 Weener cheese (5–3) vs.

#12 Oh no! We suck again! (2–6)

On paper, this looks like a lopsided matchup. Carb looks to prove he's back in the mix this season, and Troy, well, sucks again. BUT then you realize the Chiefs are on bye, so all bets are off. Possible upset here.

#6 Stick Season (5–3) vs. #11 The Hebrew Hammers (3–5)

Mitchie looks to build momentum after knocking off Netti last week. On the other side, was last week a fluke or is Petro's team getting back on track? Can't expect 30 point games from 2 running backs every week.

#8 The Wun Wuns (3–5) vs. #9 Kirk Thuggins (3–5)

These two teams find themselves towards the bottom of the rankings, and disappointed with the first 4 weeks of the season. One can turn things around here with a big win and to get back to .500. Max really needs Allen and Herbert to produce for him to win matchups, and last week they very much fell short. Nick is riding the Brock Purdy train, and hopes that some of his lesser known skill players can contribute as well.

Ryan watching his matchup last week with Bijan scoring 27.2 and the team still going 0–2.

